OrderTalk Opens New London Office

Flower Mound, Texas (PRWEB) May 11, 2012

OrderTalk, Inc., the leading provider of on-demand software and service solutions to the restaurant industry, has opened an office in London to facilitate its growing customer base in the United Kingdom.

To service its new office, the US-based company has appointed Craig Hammond to the position of UK support and account manager. Hammond brings a wealth of IT and web-based experience to the position and will be responsible for ensuring that customers receive exceptional service and technical support.

OrderTalk currently partners with some of the most prestigious restaurant brands in the UK, including PizzaExpress, YO! Sushi, Abokado Sushi, Itsu and many others and has recently signed a leading new London-based restaurant chain which will be launching its online ordering software in the coming months. The company has an extensive client base in the United States, where it has been in operation since 1999.

About orderTalk:

orderTalk specialises in providing online ordering for the restaurant industry. orderTalk has become renowned internationally for providing proven technology without the need for customers to invest in the costly development of software, the purchase of hardware or the hiring of IT staff. orderTalk provides efficient and hassle-free implementation of a branded, sophisticated and user-friendly system.
